

Play the game Followings – Tad and Abraham often played this game together.

Materials: 2 rocks and 2 people.

Set a beginning and an ending mark. The first player throws his or her rock along the designated path. The second player then throws their rock at the first player's rock. If player 2 hits rock 1 they score a point and get to throw again and keeps throwing and collecting points until they miss. Walk up to the place where the first rock landed and trade places so Player 2 throws first and Player 1 tries to hit Player 2's rock. The game continues until the end of the path is reached. I am thinking the children can bring rocks from home or you could have them paint their rocks so they are easily identifiable if you have a large number of children playing in the same general area.
