

Lincoln held many positions! He was a hard worker! As a boy, his father taught him to split rails and he became known as the “rail splitter”. When Abe left home, he became a clerk in a general store in New Salem. One day he walked 6 miles to repay 6 cents that he accidentally overcharged a woman. (This story is also included on the Brian Fox Ellis CD.) That is when he became known as “Honest Abe”. He was a postmaster and that was when he started carrying letters in his hat. He measured land and was called a surveyor. He was a legislator for 4 terms.

Draw a line from the person in a uniform to the building they would work in.

Judge

Post Office

Mail Carrier

Courthouse

Farmer

School

Clerk

Store

Firefighter

Barn

Teachers

Fire Station